SPEM SUCCESSUS ALIT

Corporate Travel Claim Example

In his role of Senior IT Developer, Darren travelled to Los Angeles and then on to Chicago USA on behalf of his company. Whilst walking along the street in Chicago he slipped on some black ice and hit his head on the pavement. Later that day, he experienced dizziness and nausea and was taken to a local medical centre. After a multitude of tests, Darren was admitted to hospital and was diagnosed with an aneurysm. His condition was very serious and on top of this the cost of his treatment and medical expenses were estimated at nearly $350,000 AUD. He spent more than three months in the Chicago hospital before he was able to return to Australia and fully recover from his injuries.

If Darren's employer had a Zurich Express Corporate Travel policy, his medical and repatriation costs would have been fully covered, together with cover for an alternative employee to fill in for Darren in his recovery period.
